Hapeville High School is a building of many facets and additions. The front side of the building was originally the back side. The back side, facing Scout Street opened its doors to students in 1939. Originally, just one wing, Hapeville High School has grown to accommodate many students. A wing was built leading down to a cafeteria. A third wing was constructed and the face of the school was then moved to North Fulton Ave. A fourth wing was added comprising the gym, drafting, shop and other classrooms. A breeze-way was built to connect the gym to the main building. When the smoke of twenty years of construction cleared the halls of Hapeville stood as they now appear; resilient and containing the echos of the Past! And Present! and Future?

On September 16, 1891, Hapeville acquired the status of a city. The city was named after a Confederate dentist, Dr. Hape. Dr. Hape died in July, 1915. Up until the present, Hapeville has been increasing in population and size. In 1929, the Atlanta Airport was opened in the city of Hapeville, In 1939, Hapeville High School was finished and opened its doors to the students of Hapeville. Until this time all students went to either Russell or Fulton High Schools. A band was formed in 1942; but, the gym wasn't finished until 1958. From the beginning, there was a very strict dress code. The girls wore dresses, skirts, sweaters, bobby soxs, and saddle oxfords. Boys wore overall pants, t-shirts, sweaters, and saddle oxfords with argyle soxs. Crew cuts were also expected of boys at this time. Hapeville has traditionally demanded excellence of its students and faculty; students and faculty are still proud to maintain the proud heritage of Hapeville High School.

The 1978-9 school year was an action packed fun-filled year. The highlights of this year were the beautiful Homecoming Dance, Saturday, November 4, and the Junior-Senior Prom on April 14, at the Fox Theatre. These were just some of the outstanding events of the year. But, everyday happenings at Hapeville are a bit outstanding in themselves. Hapeville had the opportunity to send eight academically inclined students to a Quiz Bowl Competition at Westwood High School. In the same week, three amateur orators were involved in competition in the American Legion Oratorical Contest. There was also the Governor's Honors program, Close-Up and Chorus and Band concerts. The Epicurian Club and the Home Economics classes experienced different aspects of culture by taking field trips to different social spots around town.

ACADEMICS

A is for aptitude
C is for the ability to communicate
A is for adaptability
D is for development
E is for expressionism
M is for masterful
I is for intelligence
C is for comprehension
S is for self-reliance

All of these distinct characteristics are found in the academic program at Hapeville High School.

To learn is the soul purpose of being in school. Right? Well of course learning is what gets us into school in the first place. Then there is time for extra activities. But to learn the "Three R's" is what we're here for. One must consider that the average student takes six courses a quarter, three quarters a year, totaling up to 90 courses between the beginning of eighth grade to the time of graduation. Required for all to graduate one must have some math, English, science, social science, and physical education. Not only is a student taught the ins and outs of composing a correct sentence, but also the self reliance and self confidence that a student needs to be successful in life.

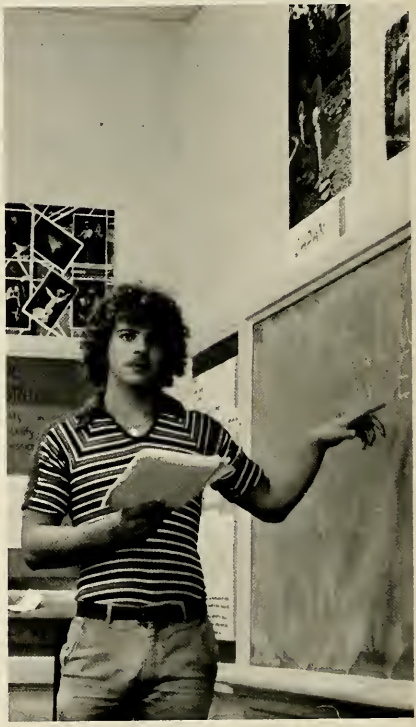

English

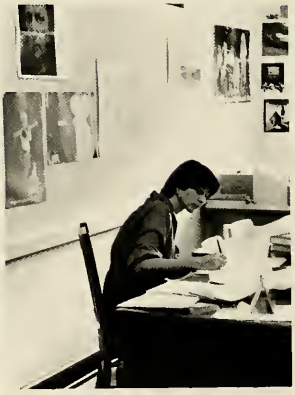

Shakespeare, Modern British Literature, and Southern Literature, among others, compose the English courses offered at Hapeville. Students are introduced to the different periods of English Literature and are taught the correct way to compose a sentence. (The Great American Novel has yet to be written.)

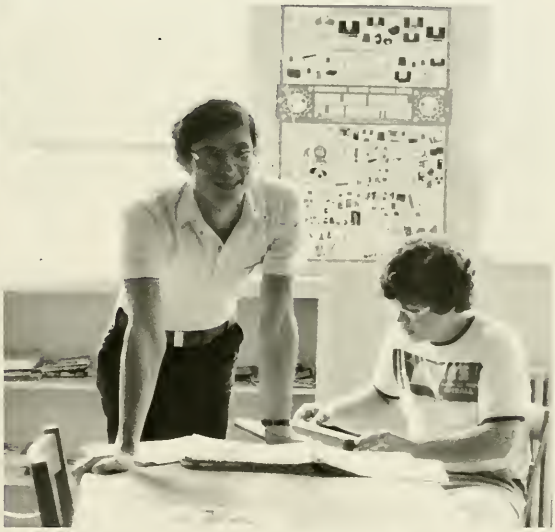

Mathematics

(3-i)z + 2-2i? "Well it's Greek to me Mr. Ellinas!" The math department endeavors to help the student further his knowledge of working mathematics, through classes in 8th grade math, pre-Algebra, Algebra, Geometry, Advanced Algebra, Analysis, and occasionally Calculus.

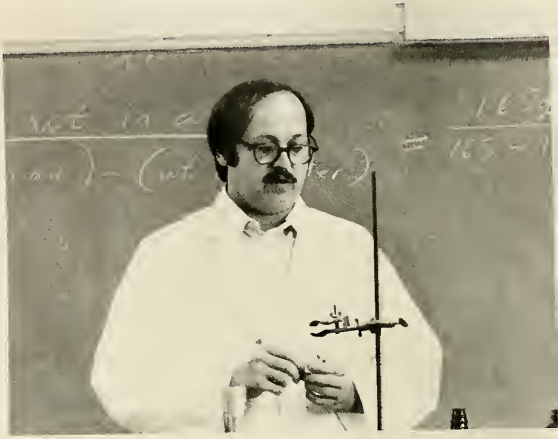

Science

The Science Department has been known this year for an especially harrowing course of chemistry. Constantly, students were seen cramming for tests between running, panic stricken, to and from Mr. Elliott's room. Mr. Speck, (the great kidder) claims that his students never miss a test. Coach Daniels provides a softening effect by introducing Hapeville students to Biology. Once their appetitis are whetted, students are on to Frankenstein experiments. Consequently, the Science Department must provide a very adequate knowledge of the sciences

Social Science

Social Sciences introduced students to everything from the workings of the political machine to the ancient Egyptian civilizations. The Social Science Department is equipped with maps, globes, films, and filmstrips in order to make the subjects taught more realistic. Current Events were stressed and a reading lab, in cooperation with English, provided opportunities for students to develop good study habits. Mrs. Wilson operated the reading lab and taught perhaps the most overwhelming course in American History. Coach Davies, new to Hapeville, freshened his teaching with daily world events. Mrs. McPherson detailed students on the philosophical views of life as expressed through history, while Coach Cloy provided an aggresive view of Social Studies. Coach McClosky spent a quarter adding a civilized nature to his students. Mrs. Graham, as part of her initiation into the Hapeville teaching staff, found herself absorbed by the challenge of teaching Revolutions.

Special Education

The Special Education classes include classes for the hearing impaired, the speech impaired and the LD/BD classes. Mr. Tannebaum takes the hearing and speech impaired, while Mr. Tidwell works with the behavior problems. Offered as an elective is sign language taught by Mr. Tannebaum.

Languages

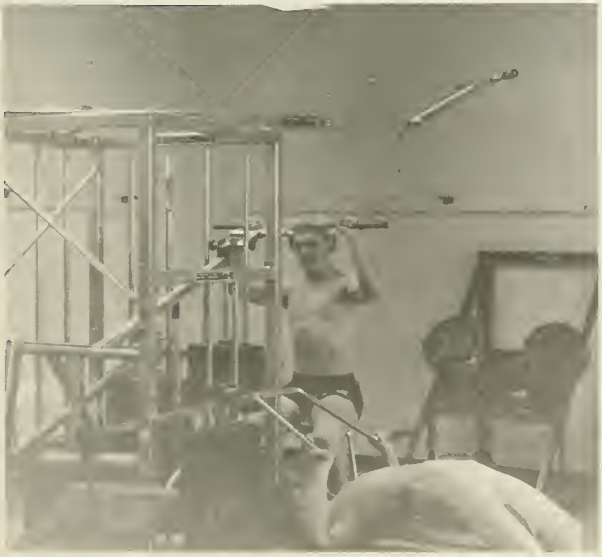

Spanish, the only foreign language offered at Hapeville, is taught by Mrs. Velasco. Although the classes are small, the students learn of the culture of the Spanish people, as well as the language. Mrs. Velasco believes that the students should learn the basics of the Spanish language, at least, so that they may have a better understanding of the world around them. Spanish opens the door for communications. Spanish appears to be the up and coming second language of our country. Being in the Spanish Club and the National Honor Society are but two of the benefits of taking Spanish.

Physical Education

The Physical Education department provides an outlet for the excess energy for most of Hapeville's students. The students are offered volleyball, tennis and golf, field hockey, bowling, and flag football, among others. P.E. provides opportunities for students to practice and use skills and abilities which they have learned, and also to develop them even further, as stated by Miss Chance. Students learn fair play, good sportsmanship, and how to compete with each other.

Art is the expression of man's creativity. Hapeville students use art to show their feelings of love, hate and anxieties.

Music: Art

Be it Brahms or Beethoven, the Beach Boys or the Beatles, Music has always been an integral part of Hapeville High School. It has provided the school with a medium which has delighted the students for years.

Inside The Classroom

The classroom is the workshop of the learned. A place of intense instruction and well needed experience for the student with a thirst for knowledge. It is a gathering place where both teacher and pupil can encounter the fascinating world of education.

Business Education

Business Education, a small department but an important one, offers students the opportunity to gain essential skills in secretarial and business occupations enabling them to seek jobs immediatly after graduation from high school. Students in VOT (Vocational Office Training) gain on-the-job experience while working at Rich's, police stations, and doctors and real estate offices among others. FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) participate in school and community projects, especially around Thanksgiving and Christmas when they sponsor an underprivileged family by giving them food for the holidays. Mostly those on the Business course take these classes but also Academics and general students gain valuable knowledge from these classes.

Library

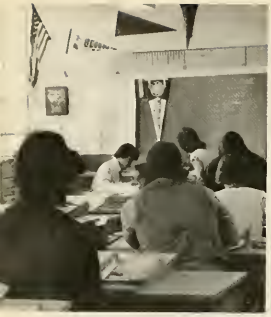

The library is one of the centers of activities in the school. It has 12,714 books and reference materials to choose from. It subscribes to 73 magazines and 5 papers. The student body seems to use the library for everything from study and research to a quiet conversation with friends. Much thanks should be given to Mrs. Mowbray and Mrs. Williams for such a fine job of decorating and keeping the library in such fine order, for having the ability to be able to help the students help themselves.

Industrial Arts

The Industrial Arts classes give students a chance to express their creative talents in wood-working and drafting. The Wood Shop classes, lead by Mr. Miller, work toward a finished piece of furniture. The Drafting class, lead by Coach Ramsey, teaches students the ins and outs of industrial and architectural drawing and technical design. The more advanced students are required to make exact scale plans for a house of their own creation. The students are graded on on the precision of their drawings and projects.

Home Economics

Take ½ cup of patience, ½ cup skill and the result is a successful Home Economics class. Under the direction of Ms Wood and Mrs. Bently, students are constantly sewing and cooking, as enticing smells drift through the halls. From cooking cookies to the difficulty of preparing a complete meal, the students seem to enjoy making the food as much as eating it. Clothing teaches students the correct way to put a zipper in and how to repair a tear or sew on a button. But most of all Clothing teaches students the value of making a clothes at a small cost and having the results bring to each student a large value.

Military

Left face. Right face. To the rear march. All are familiar sounds heard in the Military Department. The constant striving for perfection makes one wonder how Sergeants Byron and Craig and Col. Green can turn students who can not walk and talk in one motion into precision teams. The Military Department has over 100 members this year. It has one battalion which consists of three companies and one battalion staff. Also there is a drill team, color guard and rifle team. The drill team and color guard take part in the Annual Formal Inspection in March. The department is expertly run by Col. Green, Sergeant Byron, and Sergeant Craig. This year's Battalion Commander is James Hammons.

ORGANIZATIONS

Organizations are a unifying feature of High School life. They allow the student that extra little bit of reason for coming to school. He may express himself in extra-curricular activities which give him a chance to show latent talents. Organizations are not only social clubs but organizations for community and school improvement.

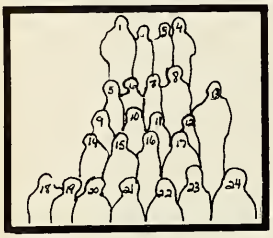

Club life can be very harrowing for the active student that participates in several. Selling is the key word for most clubs. The horror of all club members is the time when all of the clubs they're in sell M & M's. Even though much hard work goes into being a club member, the experience is well remembered.

Tough Season For Hornets

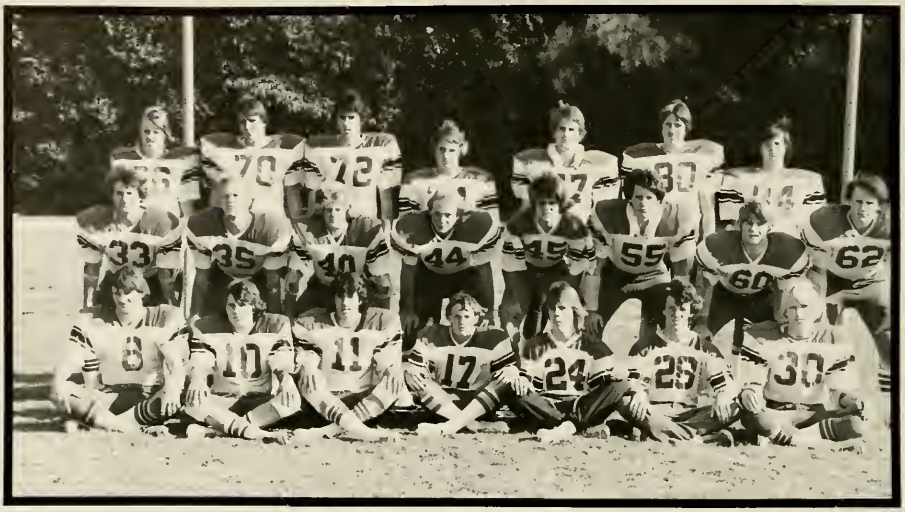

Interviews with team members of this year's Varsity Football Team produced mixed reactions. One thing was agreed upon; 1978's football team was spiritually the closest of groups. One factor was the virtual inexperience of team members who had to rely on each other and the coaching staff for total support. Eleven seniors graduated from the Hapeville Varsity squad. Of these eleven, only three had played varsity squad. Of these eleven, only three had played varsity football before. Consequently, our record of 1-8 showed excellent team work and dedication.

Homecoming 1978

Homecoming night was an exciting night for Susan McCord who was crowned the 1978 Homecoming Queen. She was accompanied by seven beautiful young ladies in her court. Seniors were Elaine Hobgood and Michelle Hawkins. Junior Lisa Cagel, Sophomore Julie Ashmore, Freshman Pam Norton, and Subfreshman Rosemary Tucker were in attendance. Susan was crowned by last year's Queen, Kim Myer, who was escorted by Mr. John Givens. It was a proud night for the court and their families.

HOMECOMING WEEK! Excitement! Laughter! Competition! Most everyone would agree that 1978 Homecoming provided something for everyone. For those who felt the need for competition, the football game on Friday night provided keen opportunity. For those who wanted entertainment, the Gong Show provided talent and laughter. For the age old rivalry between seniors and juniors the Powder Puff Football Game allowed High-spirited chase between the two teams of girls. All week long, aspiring artists could be seen drawing and decorating halls, floats and other Homecoming announcements. Perhaps most interesting was the fabulous spirit shown by the Junior Class. Juniors virtually dominated the entire week with their spirit and participation. They were awarded the largest spirit stick ever as a prize for their efforts. All in all, Homecoming could be said to have offered something for everyone.

J.V. Boys Basketball

With a mixture of talent and experience, the Jr. Varsity Boys Basketball team, lead by Coach Davies, proceeded to show that the Varsity has a future waiting in this year's Jr. Varsity. The Jr. Hornets show great promise for the future and are sure to carry on the great Hornet tradition.

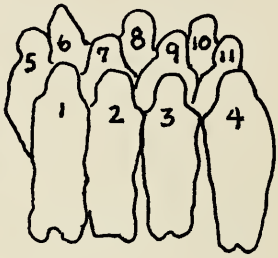

J.V. Girls Basketball

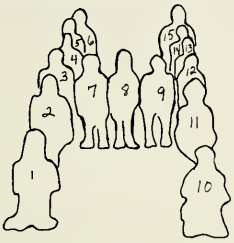

Coach Chance, Missy Hughes, Lauri Jacobson, Lee Ingebritsen, Stephanie Barrow, Trudie Carroll, Tammy Draughn, Karen Cox, Cheryl Gordan, Pam Morris, and Pam Coggin.

Under the expert coaching of Miss Chance the B-team girls basketball squad had a very good season. There were several outstanding players on the squad this year. They were Trudy Carroll, Pam Morris, and Laurie Jacobson. These were the outstanding members of the squad but the whole team is exceptional and very promising for future Varsity squads at Hapeville.

Right from the start Hapeville set about surprising everyone, including top-seeded Riverwood at the Christmas tournaments. The Hornets then went on to place 3rd in this event. Hapeville has set a record this year for the number of wins recorded in the teams history. With only three seniors leaving the squad, Coach "HULK" Brantley can only smile at the future.

Hapeville Basketball started off with a Bang and continued toward a very successful season. Led by Coach Speck, the Hornets provided wide entertainment value for the loyal fans who constantly came to show their support. GAC as usual proved to be THE game of the year with a close exciting final.

The Tennis team is made up of 15 members of either sex. It is ably coached by a very competent Mr. Davies. It is his first year at H.H.S. and naturally he has high hopes for his team. Tennis is a very old game which started in the 12th century by French Monks. It became so popular that the archbishop banned it in all monasteries because they were playing tennis instead of tending to their religious duties. But tennis still increased in popularity to the present day game watched and played by millions across the country. Hapeville has a fine tennis team that is willing to work hard to continue the tradition.

Volleyball

As a brand new team, the girls Volleyball Team experienced a rough year. They had a 0 and 5 season, but all the girls enjoyed the experience of competition. The team was ably coached by Miss Chance. Good luck next year.

Due to the loss of many players last year, the outlook of the Baseball team does not look very promising. Coach Daniel is very optimistic about this year and his team. He still will have a very tough time taking the regional title this year.

Hairstyles

Blow Dry! Cut! Pamper! Comb! Curl! Twist! Color! Wash! Feather! What we don't do to our hair! It's a wonder we have any left. But then, what would possibly take up so much time?

Dress at Hapeville has changed since the 50's. Girls wore long dresses, while guys wore slacks and had short hair. In the 60's, girls wore mini skirts and guys were wearing jeans that belled out at the bottom ... In the late 60's and early 70's about the only changes was that guys hair style had changed from short to long hair ... By the late 70's girls again had begun to wear long dresses and guys again went back to wearing their hair short instead of wearing it long, as had been custom in the 50's.

Cars

The All-American Dream, a car, is no less important to the Hapeville Student than any other symbol of success. However, a student will find many uses for a vehicle other than just moving around town. Cars are for decoration, sitting on, riding in parades, peering through the windshield, dragging floats and placing bumper stickers around $300.00 worth of chrome. The high school student finds that not only is a car a much desired necessity, but the vehicle by which a person may escape, play and surround himself by music and his friends.

Status Symbols

Status! Everybody craves it! Stereos, cars, cars with tape decks, concert tickets, letter jackets, class rings, (preferably someone elses), being able to stay out later and being 18 are status symbols in themselves. The ability to be "in" seems to be the main occupation of many students. Of course material possessions aren't the only status symbols. Making the highest grade on a test in Mrs. Wilson's class is enough to win anybody's admiration. Or taking Chemistry. (And passing!!) All in all, status symbols are simply a representation of what high school students think is "Cool".

LIFE

MUSIC!

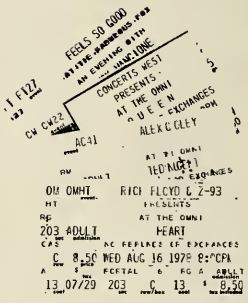

Whether making music, singing music, watching people create music or just listening to music, the beat of notes is addictive to almost all Americans. Teenagers, especially like to be close to the sound of music.

Hapeville students, being no exception to the rule, participated in all forms of music during 1978-79.

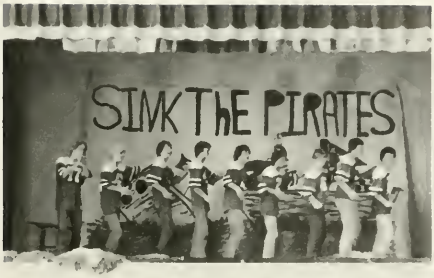

Early in the morning, band students sleepily moved out onto a silent field in order to practice for fall football. Students waited in line for concerts, bought albums by the tons and listened to music of all types.

LIFE

Movement is the Key! Arm wrestling, gymnastics, disco, or just shuffling the feet down the street have caught America by a strom. Physical fitness freaks run in cold parks early in the morning. Disco fanatics practice intricate steps in elevated shoes that would kill if one were to fall off. And even football teams get in on the beat of the music. No longer sedentary, Americans are into movement, if not for health reasons than just for the sake of moving.

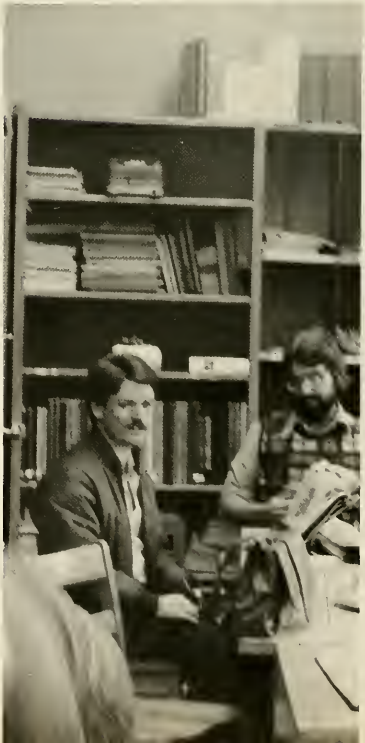

LIFE

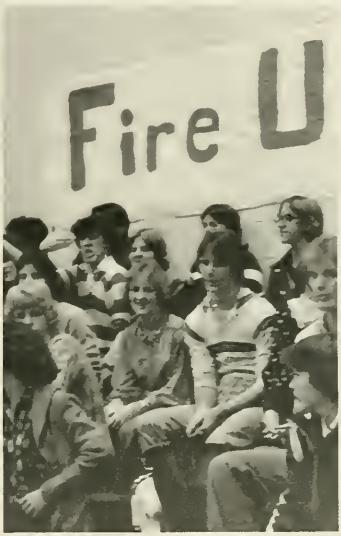

The local hangouts — places we go to have a good time, to be seen or just to get out of the house. The Dwarf, the place to go for the past 30 years, can be termed as THE place to go on a Friday or Saturday night. The Master Park is another of the "hangouts" frequented by Hapeville students. Around school the court yard or the library or even behind the band room can provide the "great escape" that one needs every now and then.

A major part of every school day happens to be the people we encounter, whether it's at a football game or simply eating lunch with a few friends. Hapeville provides an ideal environment for making friends. Since the school is small, everyone knows everyone else.

Administration:

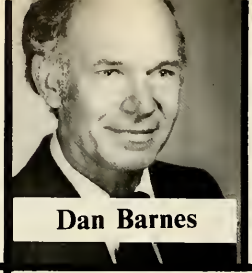

The Administration of Hapeville High School for 1978-9 incorporated a capable staff who found that they must handle the daily problems of running a high school plus the unexpected emergencies of black-outs and heat failures. John Givens, Principal, and Siva Pickelsimer, Assistant Principal, directed Hapeville High School through the rigors of another successful year. Jan Ciccarello, secretary, and Anne Stacey, clerk, handled student related decisions, bookkeeping, attendance and many other duties of running a high school. The administration also scheduled classes so that students could graduate on time. Alice Washington counseled all of the people who had problems.

SUBURBAN

Class Of "83

Although the eighth grade was the most "picked on" class this year, we were the most optimistic. Almost all of us seem to enjoy high school. Some typical remarks that can be heard among the ranks of the sub-freshmen were: "I thought I was going to get lost . . . , This if fun! . . . , I'm going to hate it . . . , Oh, wow, it's so big! . . . ," and the ever-present, "HELP!!"

The yearly trick played on the eighth grade was repeated again this year when the senior football players printed pep rally tickets. The majority of the youngest class proved wiser than had been thought, and refused to buy them. Of course, there were the ususal exceptions: "Do you have to?", and "How much are they?"

Sub-freshmen see many advantages over elementary school, such as the age differences, as noted by Paula Martin. A few major privileges we enjoyed were pep rallies and football games, the Coke machine (after hours, of course!), freedom during lunch, and especially the opportunity to meet more people and make new friends.

FEATURES

Ninth grade is a year of contradictions. The freshmen have a year of experience under their belt, but they were still low on the totem pole in standing with the upper class. Some felt that ninth grade was a year that was wasted. The eighth graders got all the attention and the seniors got the recognition. A few freshmen do not hold that opinion. For instance, Pam Brown observed that " ... every grade has its good points."

One thing that the members of the ninth grade class began to realize was that the future is coming, and it's coming fast. Not many are worrying too much, though, because, as John Cagle said, " ... what's going to happen is going to happen."

Freshmen were also paying more attention to fashions this year. Most of the girls in the ninth grade liked today's looks. Blue jeans and the "Annie Hall" look gave more freedom of expression than previous generations enjoyed, and many freshmen liked the fact that the clothes were comfortable.

Finally! The members of the Class of '81 achieved the status of Upperclassmen. How did it feel? Well, to some students, such as Robyn Cummings, being an upperclassman made a lot of difference, because "... it means I'm getting closer to the end." There were those, however, who didn't see any change from the year before in terms of advantages and prestige.

Tenth grade was a year of being in the middle. We're almost out, but we're still caught in the grind of everyday school life.

History appeared to be the sophomores' favorite subject. Although it has been said that a studious sophomore was nowhere to be found, a few can be seen cramming.

In the finest high school tradition, the H.H.S. juniors raised (begged, borrowed, etc.) enough money to entertain the seniors at the Junior-Senior Prom. Many eleventh graders felt uneasy about handling cash, because they were afraid they might lose (or spend) it, as stated by Nancy Hall. Within our class, as always, there were the Super-Sellers, who could sell a refrigerator to an Eskimo, and then there were the poor lost souls with "NO SALE" forever registered on their eyelids.

There are other aspects of being a junior. Graduation is fast approaching, and students have begun to think about what they will do with their life. Planned occupations range from President of the United States to a member of the Mafia.

Also, eleventh grade has been known as the Year of the Car, and this year was no exception. The main reasons for obtaining a car seemed to be dating and an uncontrollable fear of walking. It was easy to spot a junior in the halls of Hapeville, because if he wasn't flashing around a newly-acquired driver's license, he was saying in an almost-too-loud voice, "Hey, I've got a car! Need a ride?"

"Falling, falling,
gracefully falling.
Softly hitting the ground,

swaying

Knowing You

Knowing you is just so great
even though apart
I love you dearly, truely I do down and through my heart

Time has passed and gone away
letters come and go.
How many months have passed us by.
Do you really know?

Many times I thought of you —
and tears came to my eyes.
You made me happy and joyous
Please never pass me by.

Happy memories of past and thinking most of you only comes to one conclusion
I really miss you, I do.

So keep in touch
and wear a smile
Our paths may cross again
For now you know how I feel for you I realy Love you so.

Robin Cummings

You were someone special.
You were always there.
You were the one to turn to when the others didn't care.
I came to you when I felt sad.
You corrected me when I was bad.
You helped me through the lonely nights.
You helped me get over my parents' fights.
You were the only friend
I had.
I trusted you as if my dad.
You acted as if you needed me and I loved you more than you could see.
You, you were special.

To me you are like a light in the darkest of nights
You show me the way through the hardest of days
Your love gives me the warmth I need to give and the coolness I need to take Your the best of my friends
when I need help
And first to be there when I need love
Your a beautiful soul that gives so much and ask for so little in return
As I lay beside you so quietly and still
I wonder how long
I will Have you from now until ...

My Faithful Friends

Through sleet,
and snow,
On they trudge,
They go and go,
Through rainy days,
and muddy banks,
Still they live,
I owe them thanks.
Through baseball games,
and creeks galore,
I still trust them,
And even more,
What are they you ask,
Well I thought you knew,
They're your good ole Tennis shoes!

By Tammy Parrott

Knowing you is just so great
Even though apart
I love you so dearly, truly I do
Down and through my heart.
Time has passed and gone away
Letters come and go.
How many months have passed us by?
Do you really know?
Many times I thought of you,
and tears came to my eyes
You made me happy and joyous'
Please never pass me by.

Nobody Ever Writes a Poem about a Fan

Nobody likes its twirling blades
It twirls and clicks like cascanades
Its bright grey color its color of sand
Why doesn't anyone write about a fan?

By Tammy Parrott

Dreams are all of ones inner feelings,
Expressing themselves within a few hours
Of semi-conscience thought.
The bizarre fantasia of mindless reality
Brought into a single moment.
Ones wishes, truths, hopes and Feelings which can not be expressed Otherwise, are openly felt and realized in
The strange wonderful phenomena known as A dream.

By Mel Denney

Dreams are all of ones inner feelings, expressing themselves within a few hours of semi-concious thought, the bizarre fantasia of mindless reality, brought into a single moment, one's wishes, hopes, truthes and feelings which cannot be expressed otherwise; are openly felt and realized in the strange and wonderful phenomonon, which is known as a dream.

Mel Denny

The old fellow said to the ambitious young man.
'Stop fooling yourself with this dream'
'You will soon be old,
Your hair will be gray.
Just a dreamless man like me.'

And they tell you this,
Every single day,
Failing to see the light.

Because they've buried alive.
Too blind to see,
The darkness from the night.

And if you never fulfill your dreams today,
It's okay for you to cry.

Because you're better than those who never did,
At least you went out and tried.

Scott Ferguson

February 27, 1979

As the 1978-79 school year comes to a close, so does the 40th edition of the Hapeville High Hilltop. The Champagne Edition is both a book representing the past history of H.H.S. meshed with the Hapeville of today.

Even after the book has been sent to press, life at Hapeville goes on, therefore, some events are not presented but we would like to give recognition to the Boys and Girls Basketball teams for having the talent to make it to the State Tournaments. The band earned a superior rating at Festival. The Star Student was Lisa Jacobsden. And the star teacher was Mr. Ellinas. The wrestlers placed Third in the State.

Because life at Hapeville goes on, we the Hilltop Staff, dedicate this book to all the things we did not have room for. We would like to show our appreciation to Mrs. Cathy McPherson for all her help and cooperation.
In closing, we, the Hilltop Staff, wish to pass on the great tradition of Hapeville Hilltop to next years staff.
Best wishes and good luck.

Sincerely,

The Hilltop Staff

EXPERT REPAIR/PAINTING

What is a senior portrait? To some people it is the quick head and shoulders pose that most photographers offer.

We believe that ideally it should reflect something of your interest, something of the times you live in. In short, some of you as an individual.

We want to thank all the members of the Class of '79 who shared our idea and chose us as their photographer.
